

Bad Dog adds salesperson

NIA LAZARD

Bad Dog Games, a growing manufacturer in the regulated skill-game industry, announced recently that Nia Lazard is joining the company as its first Georgia-based COAM salesperson.

Nia brings 10-plus years of experience as a top sales performer in the security and monitoring services industry.

“We feel very fortunate to have an accomplished sales and relationship expert join our team,” said Greg Hammond, COO of Bad Dog. “While new to the gaming industry, Nia’s background in selling to convenience stores, gas stations, and restaurants makes her uniquely qualified to understand MLH customers’ wants and needs. We look forward to Nia positively impacting our collective goals ... in 2023 and beyond.”

Hammond told the Georgia Amusement Journal that “orders are up in the first part of the year.”

“It’s definitely accelerating,” he said, adding that Lazard will play a key role in enhancing and guiding that growth in Georgia.

games in the Pressto cabinets employ the new button system.

The new cabinet also offers a secondary SAS port that works independently to allow for potential TITO (ticket in ticket out) systems, eliminating the need for player cards or goose-and-gaggle setups.

Bad Dog Games is making a name for itself in Georgia. The company received the prestigious Cutting Edge Award for its Hollywood Skill board at the Southern Amusement & Entertainment Expo.

Hammond said the new cabinets with the proprietary button operation are available now for purchase.

“We’re pretty happy with it,” he said.
